

NEWS Letter

First, for those of you who missed the Fall Forging in October, you missed another good contest, dinner and auction. Just like last year with Craig Trnka, this year's clinic with John McNerny was very informative. Both of these guys seemed to have a common theme (one which I'm sure they haven't planned between them) and that is FIT! FIT! FIT!

Dave and A.T. Iverson have graciously offered to host the Xmas party at their house again this year. It will be held on Dec. 20 at 6:00 P.M.

We are already in the planning stages for the fishing trip in August. Dannette has called and talked to the boat captain. So, get ready to hear from us in the near future concerning reservations for the fishing trip.

We are going to try to have more of the sort of informal "hammer-ins"/clinics that were held at Danny Brown's. Watch for information on these. If you have an idea for any clinic that you would like to see, call Andy Wells at 760-788-1519 and we'll see how we can make that happen.

Speaking of clinics and things; the AAEP (the Equine Vet Association) is having their yearly meeting in San Diego this year at the Convention Center downtown. They have sent out an invitation to all farriers to attend for the AAEP member price for the one farrier day on Dec. 10. This admits you to the lectures and the trade show. Pre-registration date has passed but you can still register on-site. Call AAEP @ 800-443-0177 or go to www.aaep.org for information.

Lee Green will be hosting his yearly open house and clinic, featuring Dave Farley as the clinician, on Jan. 10, 2009 from 9:00 A.M. to 4:30 P.M. As always, lunch is on Lee. Please call (909) 794-3455 to RSVP so they can get a head count for the lunch.

For those interested, tool steel is available from Alloy Tool Steel; Santa Fe Springs, CA. Phone # 562-921-8605. Ask for Jerry Valle

